

PLEURO-PNEUMONIA.

Bred disease makes its appearance in Indiana.

INDIANAPOLIS, IND., Nov. 10.—The state surveyors, accompanied by two veterinary surgeons, have gone to Clinton to-day, to investigate pleuro-pneumonia there. Congressman-elect Eddie makes the following report of condition of things there: "A few days ago a firm in Ohio shipped to us over 200 head of spring calves known as dairy cattle. One hundred were sold in Clinton county, the others to parties who shipped them to us. Pleuro-pneumonia exists in an increased type among those sold in our county. Two were killed and a morton held by Dr. Niven, state veterinarian, and Dr. Jud Colville of Fort. These two surgeons and who witnessed it are agreed on the disease. These gentlemen say both are good authority, that every case is fatal. Both are agreed, are sustained by the best authority Europe and America, that the only effective remedy is to kill and burn up all dead and exposed animals. It is not to kill and bury cattle. Indians have a law which meets the case, and can be done under the law is to cull the cattle, but this will not prevent the spread of the disease among my cattle. Under these circumstances our state authorities must make a stand to face a devastating cattle scourge." Mr. Eddie asks that the infected be burned, the state authorities to depend on legislature for endorsement of their

FORT WORTH MARKETS—DAILY REVIEW.

OFFICE OF THE GAZETTE,
FORT WORTH, TEX., Nov. 10, 1886.

The local trade is taking in consideration all adverse circumstances, fully up to if not better in volume than was anticipated by the majority of experienced business men. The wholesale grocery market seems particularly flourishing, though retailers are stocking up in no niggardly manner in all other lines of general merchandise.

Country produce is in fair demand, which the supply meets sufficiently to keep prices firm, though not higher.

Grain dealers will shade quotations slightly to effect large sales, though there is no complaint of a lack of business.

The coffee situation remains unchanged and the gamble continues. It is a very long time since any market for a food staple was in the same condition as coffee to-day. The present prices show an extraordinary advance which is sustained only by speculation and short spot supplies.

Canned goods are quiet, but there is a slight improvement in the consumption demand.

Rice is dull with every prospect of a large foreign supply.

At New Orleans sugar is declining steadily and is very much depressed, having dropped fully 1¢ a cent during the week. The crop is likely to turn out better than was expected, but under no circumstances will it be larger than last year. Molasses is firm.
